Entered at the postoffice in Tonopah as second-class matter

AST week vice-president McCormick, of the Southern Pacific paid a visit to Tonopah and then took a canter down the line as far as the Utah border. He was not prepared for any wonderful development and he had accordingly scheduled himself for a hasty trip that would not interfere with pressing office affairs. In that short jaunt Mr. McCormick saw so much that he was converted into a special booster and advocate plenipotentiary for the Sagebrush citizens. Everywhere he went he was greeted by merry bands of optimists, whom Mr. J. M. Fulton, the district agent, who was acting as Colony is a settlement of persons of turned loose after the McNamaras cicerone, introduced as the plain people, who were enjoying a prosperity such as they had not known since the palmy days of the Comstock when miners went to work in plug hats and Prince Albert coats.

There were sights and sights and then some more sights. Everybody had something to say about how he was as busy as a jack rabbit gathering forage in winter time. Everybody had a good word to say for the railroad and its management and as the official train pulled out from every station it was accompanied by strenuous invitations to come back.

Now the vice-president has come back and brought a whole lot of influential friends who want to see if they can convict their host of mendacity. Everywhere the progress is unbelievable and, if the present rush continues Mr. McCormick thinks he will have to subscribe for a fence to keep out the crowds that are eager to be enrolled among the progressive citizens of Nevada. In Tonopah the vice-president was amazed at the magnitude of the mines and mills and the tons of bullion sent out every month. At Goldfield reduced raisin imports from 38,000. he was delighted with the new flotation process and at Ely he was told that the miners were making so much money that they hardly knew what to do

Lovelock, Winnemucca, Elko, Golconda, Battle Mountain and Wells all joined in the get acquainted movement which Mr. McCormick initiated and the chances are than when the shippers of Nevada want anything they can carry their grievances direct to the throne of authority and get speedy re-

BIG FEATURES FROM SMALL BEGINNINGS

HEN convention of the feathered variety is called for Reno about the end of the year when an attempt will be made to stimulate interest in the gentle art of cultivation of shell fruit. The poultry growers of Nevada are engaged in a very laudable undertaking since they are trying to catch up with the demand for the product of their coops and pens, but it is almost a fore gone conclusion that they will have a hard race to run before they attain the goal of their ambition. The magnitude of this industry is hardly appre ciated by the ordinary people.

Egg and chickens come to this state by the carload from Kansas and Nebraska and nowhere is the demand greater than in the so called agricultural communities, like Winnemucca and Elko, where it is commonly supposed the citizens are not strangers to the sight of a real hencoop. One of those public welfare is involved, did a little figuring yesterday on the hen industry DELINQUENT SALE NOTICE fellows with a pencil, who always gets busy with statistics whenever the in Nevada with the startling conclusion that people of Nevada consume not less than 15,000,000 eggs per annum. At least that is what this wizard of the mathematical said and there was no one around to dispute the correctness of his judgment.

As a cold matter of fact the amount is not exaggerated as will appear from the fact that the census bureau allowed Nevada last year a population of 19,000. Just to avoid fractions and using this as a divisor it is apparent that the consumption of foreign eggs is well inside the mark as it allows only 151 eggs a month for every man, woman and child within the commonwealth. Big oaks from little acorns grown and millions have been made in the

The social reformers are getting wise to themselves with their uplift work and now most of the organizations engaged in that effort admit there is more room for missionaries at the top of the heap than among the working girls. Society needs a purging.
